Art Linkletter To Address NSU Centennial Convocation

Television and radio personality Art Linkletter will be the distinguished speaker for the Centennial Convocation to be held Friday, Oct. 5, on the eve of Northwestern State University's 100th birthday celebration.

A capacity crowd of more than 1,500 people from throughout the state and across the country are expected to attend the formal academic assembly commemorating NSU's Centennial. The event at 10 a.m. in the Fine Arts Auditorium of the A.A. Fredericks Creative and Performing Arts Center is one of the highlights of this fall's special Homecoming program at Northwestern.

A television and radio star for more than 45 years, Linkletter has performed in two of the longest-running shows in broadcasting history. "House Party" was on daytime CBS television and radio for 25 years, airing five days a week for 52 weeks a year. The show won an Emmy Award for best daytime show on television and also four Emmy nominations. Linkletter's "People Are Funny" ran on night-time NBC television and radio weekly for 52 weeks a year for 19 years and won three Emmy nominations.

Linkletter, who lives in Beverly Hills, Calif., is also a well-known author, having turned out one of the top non-fiction bestsellers in the history of publishing, "Kids Say The Darndest Things." This book led all sellers for two years and is No. 14 on the list of all non-fiction published in the U.S. Other books of his are "People Are Funny," "Kids Sure Write Funny," "Secret World of Kids," "Child's Garden of Misinformation," "Oops," "I Wish I'd Said That," "Linkletter Down Under," "The Women In My Life," "How To Be A Super Salesman," "Yes, You Can," "I Didn't Do It Alone," "Hobo On the Way To Heaven" and "Public Speaking for Private People."

Ten honorary doctorate degrees from colleges and universities have been awarded Linkletter for his humanitarian work and his interest in youth. He has been named Speaker of the Year in 1969 by the International Platform Associates, Salesman of the Year, Grandfather of the Year, and his national charity work has rewarded him with citations as chairman of National Easter Seal Week, National Heart Week, National Cancer Week, National Arthritis Foundation, Foster Parents Plan, Goodwill Industries, and YMCA and Boy Scout leaderships.

Linkletter also has served on the President's National Advisory Council for Drug Abuse Prevention, and on the Presidential Commission to Improve Reading in the U.S. and also was president of the National Coordinating Council on Drug Abuse Education and Information, Inc.

In December of 1982, Linkletter became the sixth recipient of the Omar Bradley Spirit of Independence Award, which was given at the Independence Bowl football game in Shreveport. Others to receive the award--named after the late five-star general who served in both World War I and World War II--were actor John Wayne, comedian Bob Hope, radio commentator Paul Harvey, President Reagan and entertainer Danny Thomas, who was the 1983 recipient.

Linkletter graduated from San Diego State College in 1934 with a bachelor's degree in English and psychology. During his senior year, he was offered a job as radio announcer at station KGB, a CBS outlet in San Diego, and by the time he graduated, had become chief announcer and decided to remain in broadcasting.

A Message From The President

By Dr. Joseph J. Orze
NSU President

On October 6, Northwestern State University celebrates its 100th birthday, and what a celebration it is going to be. It is not coincidental that October 6 is also the University's Homecoming Day. You might say that it was a century in the planning.

Homecoming 1984 is going to be a truly special and memorable occasion. The University is opening its arms and doors to you with academic, cultural and informative events scheduled throughout the weekend. Come and be a part of it.

The 1984 Demons have adopted the slogan "Demon Dynamite," and it is an appropriate one. From my biased viewpoint, the Demons are loaded with explosive talent, and they will have their sights set on the Bobcats of Southwest Texas State University, the pre-season Gulf Star Conference favorites and NSU's Homecoming opponent. It should be a classic gridiron battle.

The University community looks forward to welcoming you back for the 1984 Homecoming to help us celebrate the Centennial Year of your Alma Mater, a grand institution with a rich history and tradition behind it and an even brighter future before it.

Come help us kick off the second hundred years.

Harvey W. Moreland (right photo), who now resides at the Heritage Manor Nursing Home, Hwy. 65, Ferriday, is the only surviving member of the "Just Us Seven Club," which was pictured (left photo) in the 1917 Potpourri. The photo caption in the yearbook included the club's colors: white with black spots, key to password: tappa-nu-keg, motto: the winning seven, place of business: greenhouse, password: (not in print) and open all night: hours 1 a.m.-1 a.m. Club members were "Old Rough and Ready" Davis; "Tenderfoot" Sikes; "Buckshot" Moreland; "Rusty" Mendoza; "Daredevil" Houeye; "Windy" Miller; and "Chock" Webb, Ph.D.

'Just Us Seven Club' Down To One Member

The "Just Us Seven Club" of 1917 is now down to only one living survivor, Harvey W. Moreland, a school teacher for 46 years whose residence is the Heritage Manor Nursing Home on Highway 65 in Ferriday.

Moreland, from Concordia Parish, was also a farmer and a stockman to supplement the pay that teachers made in the early days of education, a salary of $100 per month.

Moreland recalls the other six members of the "Just Us Seven Club": R.I. "Old Rough and Ready" Davis was a school teacher and worked for many years with the Louisiana State University Agriculture Extension Service and in later years with the Electric Coop in DeRidder.

Dennis "Tenderfoot" Sikes was also a school teacher and was the superintendent of Winn Parish for several years.

Dr. Charles "Chock" Webb finished school at Tulane University and had a medical practice established in Natchitoches until the time of his death in 1936. He had a brother, Joe Webb, who was at Northwestern for many years and also a sister, Mrs. Mae Rhodes, who was a house mother. Le Roy "Windy" Millder was a great teacher, sportsman and a reporter who managed the Placement Office for several years. When he retired, he went to work at First Federal Savings & Loan.

A.A. "Rusty" Mendoza went off to war in 1919 and served on a submarine. In later years, he taught in military affairs.

Huey "Daredevil" Houeye died in 1967 from a heart attack.

Blue Key Focuses On Jimmy Berry

Note: This is another story in the continuing Alumni Columns series concerning those NSU Blue Key members who were selected as Mr. Northwestern while they were students.

Jimmy Berry was elected "Mr. NSU" in 1965. He was born in Winnfield and graduated from Winnfield High School.

In 1961, Jimmy enrolled at Northwestern. He was elected president of his freshman class and later served as president of his senior class. Berry also served as a state and local officer in the Student Louisiana Teachers' Association.

Jimmy started his teaching career in 1965 as a math and science teacher at Midway Junior High in Shreveport. In his second year of teaching he served as co-editor of the Caddo Teachers' Association Journal and was a finalist for Educator of the Year in Caddo Parish.

During the summer of 1966, Jimmy presented the commencement address for graduation ceremonies at Northwestern.

In 1967, Berry was appointed supervising teacher at the Northwestern State University Laboratory School. While teaching at the lab school, he served as consultant to several parishes in math, science, social studies, and media. He has taught numerous college classes for the Department of Education at NSU.

Jimmy helped establish the NSU Middle Laboratory School and became principal of that school in 1975.

In 1978, Jimmy was selected as the "Outstanding Young Educator" in Natchitoches Parish. Later that year, he was selected as one of the top three "Outstanding Young Educators of Louisiana."

He has served as president of the Natchitoches Area Jaycees, vice president of the chamber of commerce, and president of the Dixie Youth Baseball Organization. He has coached basketball and track for the First Baptist Church and has spent 10 years as a coach of youth baseball.

Jimmy is currently serving as recording secretary for the NSU Blue Key Alumni Chapter. His comments relating to his involvement in Blue Key while at Northwestern, "The numerous service activities provided by Blue Key for other students at Northwestern has had a tremendous influence on my life. Service to humanity is the most gratifying work one can do."

NORTHWESTERN STATE UNIVERSITY
June 30, 1984

I am very honored to be asked, from the thousands of graduates, to offer a few comments about "Reflections on Life as a Former Student at Northwestern." While my comments are personal, I believe they can be the reflections of many Northwestern students.

We are an accumulation of our past. I firmly believe that, so I ask you to bear with me in a personal recounting of my early years.

I grew up in the very northwestern corner of Natchitoches Parish in the Ajax community. We lived on Jim River, which flows into Bayou Pierre. In our early school years, my older brother and I had to cross Jim River on a foot log, walk about a mile to a dirt road and catch a school bus to Ajax School. Often, much to our delight, the bus would get stuck, delaying our arrival. There were 82 students in grades 1 through 12 at Ajax. Two grades were in each room for each teacher. There were seven students in my graduating class--the largest class in several years!

Ajax School did not enjoy a gymnasium, indoor plumbing, central heating, or air conditioning. But, unlike so many of today's public schools, our teachers knew us well. I had the same English teacher from the seventh through the twelfth grade. Our teachers cared for us and loved us. Classmates were real friends. And our parents knew where we were and what we were doing at all times.

I missed much of the fall in the ninth grade because I had to help my parents pick the fall cotton crop. It was then, with the support of my parents, teachers, and friends, that I became committed to going to college. I concluded there had to be a better way to make a living than pulling a cotton sack!

Over the years, our teachers had brought us to Northwestern for the circus, special events, softball and baseball tournaments, and the like. One of the most inspiring moments in my life came in the seventh grade when I heard Glenn Cunningham tell, in the Fine Arts Auditorium, his moving personal story of how he was critically burned as a young boy and the doctors told him he would never walk again. You may know the story: He became the world's fastest miler. That story, the counsel of my teachers, and memories of picking cotton, inspired me to come to Northwestern.

I entered in the fall of 1957. I had never used a telephone; we never had indoor plumbing in our house, I had seen only two movies in my life; and I had to earn my way through school. I lived in "C" Frame, one of three frame dormitories on the outskirts of campus at that time. "C" Frame was the farthest away from the center of campus, and thus the cheapest. I shared the room with two others, making my cost $30.00 for the entire semester. I worked in the snack shop in the Field House for Mrs. Book--at 50 cents an hour. I reported for work at 6 a.m., six days a week. I worked breakfast and, between classes throughout the day, cleaned tables. In my second year, I applied to be a student grader in the Business School. Professor Morrison interviewed me and said, "Go into my office and type this," handing me a memo. (I had taken typing in high school and offered that as one of my skills.) I sat down at his typewriter. Lo and behold, it was electric! I didn't even know how to turn it on! Nonetheless, I was hired as a grader for Mr. Kenneth Durr and Mr. Joe Johnson. In my third year, I moved up on campus to the Brick Shack and served as a floor monitor under Mrs. Rhodes, our house mother. Also, during my third year, one of the accounting students ahead of me, Edwin Cathy, graduated. He had been the bookkeeper for Mr. Rhese Collins who owned C.E. Collins & Sons. Edwin recommended me as his successor, and I was hired. Thus, in my last year, I took eighteen hours per semester, held two jobs, and was active, as I was throughout my days at Northwestern, at Westside Baptist Church.

Yes, I remember Caldwell Hall, Bienville Hall, the Natatorium, the library, the Rendezvous Cafe, the Field House, the campus laundry, and the unair-conditioned classrooms (I went to school for three consecutive summers!) I graduated in three years in 1960, at the age of 20. The Summer 1960 class must have been a dry year, for I was honored as class valedictorian.

But I remember most of the people of Northwestern. They include my business professors--Professor Morrison, who taught me income taxes; Van McGraw; Mr. Kenneth Durr, who taught my first accounting course; Mr. Joe Johnson; Mr. Towery; and Mr. Alan Steele, who became Dr. Steele while I was at Northwestern. Mr. Steele taught all my upper-level accounting courses, and he, along with the others, challenged me to continue my education, which I later did at LSU. Before enrolling in LSU, however, I took the CPA examination even though I had to wait until I was 21. Because of my educational experiences at Northwestern, I was able to join the one-in-ten nationally who passed all four parts on the first attempt. Among the many other professors who stand out in my memory is Dr. Ruth Bruner, who tried to sharpen my typing and business communication skills. She was truly loved by her students. I remember Mr. Merrill in journalism, Mr. Whittington in math, Mr. Newsome, Mr. Marx, and many others, including Myra Gullledge, director of the Baptist Student Union. I felt like a son to all of them.

I arrived in September 1957, as a scrawny, naive, seventeen-year-old, 119-pound "doggie," as freshmen were called. The world was truly before me. I arrived so inarticulate that my parents said, "We don't care what you study, for you should pursue where your heart leads, but we will require that you take a speech class." They knew that would be a big test for me--and one much needed. Out of fear, I put off doing that until my very last semester. Because of that class, I sweated whether or not I would graduate.

I'm sure my speech instructor would be shocked to learn that I'm traveling over 100,000 miles this year, throughout the United States giving speeches as President-Elect of the 12,000-member American Accounting Association.

As Jerry Pierce stated so well in the most recent issue of Alumni Columns, my affection and respect for Northwestern has grown deeper over the years, and this year's Centennial celebration has intensified my awareness of how much Northwestern and its faculty, like Professor Morrison, really mean to me.

I have received many awards over the years, including the National Accounting Educator of the Year Award, and presided over many national organizations, but none of these accomplishments would have been possible without you, Northwestern--you as a place--as a caring, committed community of friends. Indeed, we are only an accumulation of our past; nothing more.

Thank you, Northwestern--you as an institution, you as a community of educators and friends like Professor Morrison--for being in the right place at the right time for a kid from Ajax and for the thousands of other kids you have taken in, nurtured, and sent into the world, much richer for having passed your way.

Five Men Selected As Distinguished Business Graduates

The College of Business and Applied Sciences at Northwestern State University has selected five men from California, Texas and Louisiana as distinguished business graduates of NSU.

Northwestern's distinguished graduates in the business area are Dr. Doyle Z. Williams of Torrance, Calif., the Peat, Marwick, Mitchell Professor and dean of the School of Accounting at the University of Southern California; Dr. William V. Muse of Bryan, Tex., vice chancellor for academic programs and planning for the Texas A&M University System; Dr. Dwight Delbert Vines of Monroe, president of Northeast Louisiana University; Jack W. Eversull Jr. of Lafayette, senior vice president of operations for Trans Louisiana Gas Company, Inc., and Dr. George T. Walker of Monroe, president-emeritus of Northeast Louisiana University.

They were honored during the Noble B. Morrison Endowment Banquet June 30. Proceeds from the event went toward the Noble B. Morrison Endowment Fund, which has been established to generate at least $100,000 for student scholarships and faculty development in the College of Business and Applied Sciences.

Williams is the author of numerous articles and monographs and the contributor to several books. He is currently president-elect of the American Accounting Association, is a trustee of the California Certified Public Accountant Foundation for Education and Research, and is a member of the Council of the American Institute of CPA's.

Recognized nationally as an authority on management and marketing, Muse joined Texas A&M as dean of the College of Business Administration in 1979 and in 1983 was appointed vice chancellor for academic programs and planning for the Texas A&M University System. Under his leadership as dean of business, the college grew to become the second largest college at A&M in enrollment and the fifth largest business school in the nation in terms of full-time undergraduate enrollment.

Vines has been president of Northeast Louisiana University since 1975. He previously served as professor of management and dean of the College of Business Administration at NLU.

Eversull joined Trans Louisiana Gas Company in 1980 as vice president of northern area operations and was promoted in 1981 to vice president of engineering and in 1983 to senior vice president of operations. He is a former "outstanding state president" in the U.S. Jaycees.

Walker, a former professor and dean at NSU, was president of Northeast Louisiana University from 1958 to 1976. During his administration, Northeast's enrollment increased from 2,100 students to over 9,700.

Junior quarterback Wayne Van, shown in action in the 1983 opener against McNeese State, will lead a veteran offensive unit for the Demons this fall. Van passed for over 1,200 yards as a sophomore in 1983.

Experience A Key Factor For Demons In 1984

An added year of experience for both the players and the coaching staff could be the key to success for the Northwestern State University football team in 1984. The Demons posted a 4-7 mark a year ago, winning their final three games of the season.

As Coach Sam Goodwin and his staff begin their second year at Northwestern State, the Demons return 10 offensive and six defensive starters for the first year of competition in the Gulf Star Conference.

"We certainly feel better this year about a lot of things," said Goodwin as fall practice started. "First we as a staff feel we are way ahead of a year ago as far as knowing the players and their capabilities. Plus now the players have a much better idea of our system and we aren't spending all of our practice time just on getting the system installed."

The Defense returns six starters from 1983, but actually there is a larger number of players returning that started at one time or another a year ago. "We've got experience on defense and one of our top strengths is the secondary," said Goodwin. "But while we have some depth up front and at outside linebacker, we are very thin at inside linebacker and in the secondary."

On offense, everybody returns except the tightend and Goodwin says someone has to step to the front at that spot.

"We have to come up with a running attack," admits Goodwin. "And I think we are very much ahead of a year in that area. I think our offense will be much improved, but we do need one of those guys to step to the front at tightend."

"Defensively, I think we will be like last year in that we won't give up the big play very often," added Goodwin. "We will be quicker than in 1983 but not as big. Our main concern will be when we face a big strong physical football team."

If the Demons can stay away from injuries in key areas, Northwestern State will have a chance to avenge some of those narrow losses of a year ago as the new season progresses.

The Demons will also appear on cable television three times during the 1984 season as part of a package between the Gulf Star Conference and the Cable Sports Network of Baton Rouge.

The Demons will host Nicholls State on Thursday night October 11 and Sam Houston State on Thursday night, October 25 in television games and the contest that ends the season at Stephen F. Austin on November 17 will also be televised.

Southwest Texas Is GSC Favorite Demons Second In Pre-Season Poll

In its initial year in 1-AA football, Southwest Texas State is expected to bring home the bacon. At least that is the feeling of the media and coaches in the Gulf Star Conference region. The Bobcats, 44-6-0 during the last four years, and winners of the 1981 NCAA Division II title, received 29 of 51 first-place ballots cast. Northwestern State, 4-7-0 in 1983 (including a 5-game losing skid in which they were outscored by 18-total points) was second in the pre-season poll, followed by surging Stephen F. Austin State, who broke Southwest's 23-game winning streak last season.

Nicholls State edged Southeastern Louisiana for the fourth spot, while Sam Houston State, picked sixth, will try for its second winning season in 14-years under third-year mentor Ron Randleman.

HEAD COACH: Linda Jones

LINDA JONES

Jones Named To Lady Demon Staff

Linda Jones, a former Lady Demon standout in both basketball and softball, has been named as the Lady Demon softball and volleyball coach. The announcement was made by Pat Pierson, coordinator of women's athletics at Northwestern State following recent approval by the State Board of Trustees for Colleges and Universities.

Jones, a native of Ft. Walton Beach, FL, received her bachelor's degree in Health and Physical Education from Northwestern State in 1981 and a year later received her master's degree, also in health and physical education.

For the past two years Jones has served as the head softball and women's basketball coach at Many High School.

Prior to taking the position at Many, Jones served for one season as a graduate assistant at Northwestern State, working with both the basketball and softball teams.

"We feel Linda will be a great asset to our staff," noted Pierson. "She knows our program and the way it operates. Her coaching records since her graduation from Northwestern are impressive and we know she will do an outstanding job with both the volleyball and softball programs."

Jones will take over a volleyball program that was re-instated just a year ago and replaces veteran James Smith as the softball coach. Smith will remain on the staff, serving his original duties as Lady Demon assistant basketball coach.

Demon Thinclads Rank High In State

Led by first place finishes in two relay events, Northwestern State's track and field team was well-represented on the Louisiana Sports Writers Association (LSWA) All-Louisiana track and field team for 1984.

The Demons, along with having the best times in both the 400-meter relay and the 1600-meter relay, also placed second in two events and third in three other events.

Northwestern's 400-meter relay team earned the fastest time in the state for the year by running a 39.71 in winning the Rice Meet of Champions. That foursome consisted of Percy McGlory, Mario Johnson, Edgar Washington and Cedric Evans. The Demons also placed sixth in the nation in the event.

The 1600-meter relay team of Johnson, Evans, Washington and Donald Toussaint ran a 3:08.24 to set a school record with the fastest time in the state of the year.

Freshman jumper Eric Barber ranked in the state in both the long and triple jumps. Barber, from Natchez, MS, ranked second in the triple jump with a best effort of 51-10½ for the season, while also jumping 24-7 in the long jump to tie for third place honors.

Distance runner Ricky Fuller was the other Demon on the all-state team as he had the third fastest time in the state in the 10,000-meters with an effort of 33:03.16.

Showing the type of track and field talent around the state, six state records were broken during the Spring of 1984.

CSSC Spring Sports To Be Hosted By NSU

Northwestern State will host the Gulf Star Conference Spring Sports Festival in 1985, according to an announcement made at the conclusion of the GSC meetings held at Nicholls State University in Thibodaux.

The conference track and field championships, along with the men's and women's tennis titles will be decided at Northwestern next Spring in conjunction with the Spring meetings being held at the same time. The dates for those championships have not yet been set.
